From the Pastor...

Dear Friends,

This is the first newsletter of 2019, so it looks like the new year has started and is well on its way. I certainly hope and pray that the year brings peace and joy to all of us, and to our church as a family. Even though nothing much changed at midnight on January 1, we still have a sense of new opportunities. This is traditionally a time of making plans and promises (sometimes we call them “resolutions”). Maybe better than specific resolutions – for God’s plans are always mightier than our own – we can simply seek an attitude of joyful expectation. We say that we trust God with our lives, but do we really expect him to come through? God has more than enough goodness and blessings to go around - enough that we can share with everyone we know and still have plenty left over. Maybe it is as simple as that, just coming to expect what is already coming our way. May 2019 be for all of us a new opportunity to be astounded what God will do.

With New Years blessings,

Elliott
